

The Reading and Writing Centre

Reading and writing advisory service

What is the purpose?

The Reading and Writing Centre offers a free advisory service for school leaders, educators, parents and caregivers to support students' reading and writing improvement.

Who can access the service?

The service is available to school leaders, educators, parents and caregivers from state, independent and catholic schools across Queensland.

Reading and writing disorders

The Reading and Writing Centre draws on contemporary research and methodologies to provide specialist advice on the prevention, identification and intervention of reading and writing disorders, with a specific focus on dyslexia.

Who will respond to your enquiry?

The Reading and Writing Centre has a team of experienced educators and speech language advisors who have specialist skills in supporting students' reading and writing development.

How do I contact the service?

The Advisory service may be accessed by telephone or email on weekdays between 8:00am and 5:00pm.

Phone: (07) 3328 6950

Email: readingcentre@qed.qld.gov.au

